

Fabulous Fall 2009 Menswear - Duckie Brown and Domenico Vacca

Although Spring may be here, Luxury Experience presents a preview of Menswear for Fall and Winter 2009, that has a decidedly sophisticated and contemporary appeal as shown by Duckie Brown and Domenico Vacca during Mercedes-Benz Fashion Week in New York.

Designers Daniel Silver and Steven Cox of Duckie Brown are known for their downtown cool and sophisticated collections, which continues with their Fall/Winter 2009 collection "How Duckie Can You Get." The collection, presented in February 2009, consists of 24 looks, done in a color palette of navy, black, dark brown, camel, dark grey, dark green, dark magenta, gold, and orange.

This season warmth is the operative word with Giant Pompon Hats done in black on black, orange on orange, and black on orange, reminiscent of British Royal Guard hats. Look for accessories of Black Headbands; Black Long Wool Gloves; Black elbow length Quilted Gloves; Black Shearling Gloves; Black Looped Jersey Gloves; Orange Suede Gloves; and Beaded and Embroidered Blanket Scarves. Speaking with Steven Cox we learned that each hat took him one day to make. With the recession, they wanted to bring back some of their favorite pieces like the hats, which they had done a few seasons ago, and do more of them this season.

A few of the highlights of the show included double breasted coats, suits, and jackets that figured prominently in the collection and ranged from classic cut lengths to mid-thigh cuts. He uses plaids and splashes of color in the collection the way a chef adds spice, as evidenced in his chocolate brown velvet body hugging suit paired with a hunter green shirt and plum patterned tie; and a beige plaid jacket with blue, brown, and cream stripes paired with a blue shirt and plum patterned tie.
